Course Overview

The entering of a room, in the life of the first line police officer is one of the most common, yet challenging tasks conducted every day in the performance of their duties. Many departments don't have the budgetary resources to instruct the first line duty officers in room entry. Superiors will instruct many of these officer's to sit back and wait for the properly trained officer's to respond. I.e. S.W.A.T., C.I.R.T. etc.

This three-day course will introduce the attendees to the tactical concepts and movement at the entranceway/door of that room. The tactical procedures and drill will begin at the doorway, and proceed to complete entry into the room and eventually secure and clear such room. The attendees will be instructed in room entries beginning with, two and ending with as many as six to eight officers. They will be confronted with obstacles while entering the room and posed with shoot and don't shoot scenarios along with close quarter combat (CQB) drills and shooting on the move at distances as close as 7 feet.

The attendees will be instructed in the following areas of room entry:

- Firearms Safety
- Mental Conditioning and Combat mindset
- Threat assessment and scanning drills
- Combat gun handling drills
- Use of Deadly Physical Force
- Basic elements of dynamic room entry
- Operator zone control
- Verbal communications
- Quick peek techniques
- Slicing the pie and limited penetration
