Course Overview

This course applies to both private and public sector organizations. The course provides an overview of general policies, structures, and practices that organizations can adopt to: help prevent threatening misconduct and violence affecting the workplace; and better respond to and resolve incidents of threats and violence that occur. This course presents practical definitions of workplace violence and the continuum of acts and behavior, from less severe to more severe, and a classification of workplace violence incidents based on the relationship of perpetrator to victim. It outlines prevention strategies and procedures for detecting, investigating, managing, and following up on threats or violent incidents that occur in a workplace.

The course covers the following topics:

- Workplace Violence—A Broad Concern for Employers;
- Need for a Multidisciplinary Response;
- Preparedness and Prevention;
- Threat Response and Incident Management;
- Integrating the Issue of Domestic Violence into Workplace Violence Prevention Strategies; and
- Role of Law Enforcement.
